By Appointment.

(FOR ADDRESS ONLY.)

The Crinan Canal is primarily the cause of the existence as a port of Ardrishaig, and was constructed in 1800-1 in order to create water connection across Kintyre, thus enabling small coasting vessels to avoid the negotiation of the turbulent seas of the Mull of Kintyre. The scheme was commenced under the auspices of the Duke of Argyll, Sir J. Rennie, the eminent civil engineer, being responsible for the plans.
